ABOUT THIS VOLUME.

I. Nineteen years ago, the writer was present at the Semi-Centennial of old Yale, when the graduates of the earlier years of the present century came up from various parts of the country, and though "grave and reverend" Ministers, Judges, Professors, Governors, Senators, etc., at home, while there they were literally "boys" again. It was intensely interesting to mingle with them on the Campus, and hear them recount the old "times," and talk over their successes and reverses in life's contest. Every now and then, two old men would recognize and rush toward each other, and with a hearty hand-shaking, begin to inquire after each other's welfare: "Why, I have hardly heard of you in forty years. I have been quietly at work in my parishes and had lost track of you." . . . "Where have you been?" . . . "What have you been doing?" . . . "Whom did you marry?" . . . "What children have you?" . . . "Where's Brown?" . . . "How does he get on?" . . . "Whom did he marry?" . . . "What children has he?" And so on, hour after hour, in dozens of groups, the inquiries—mainly the above four—were repeated with little variation. And so it is always at every Alumni gathering.

Incited by what was then witnessed and heard, the writer determined to gather and preserve answers to the four prominent questions, respecting the several members of his own Class, and from time to time send a printed record to each, so that those too distant, or too hard driven, to come up to Commencement, might at least have the pleasure of learning at second-hand, some of the things they would like to know concerning their old comrades.

The printed slips, issued a few years later, embodying briefly the where and what of the Class, were so eagerly sought after by others, and the wish was so often expressed that "our class," might have like reports, that the writer determined to try to meet the general want, by preparing a condensed Record of all the Alumni of our College in one Volume. Unexpected difficulties occurred. Few Class histories were actively kept up. The earlier Alumni had gone to distant fields, and the address of but few was accurately known. A large number in the Itinerant ministry were frequently changing their habitations. The Minutes of the Conferences gave circuits and stations, but seldom named the real P. O. address. Outside of the ministry, the work was still more troublesome. Large numbers of the letters and circulars sent out never brought any response. Many Alumni were laboring in the South, and the war coming on changed their locations, or shut them out from access. Several cases have occurred, within three weeks past, where two or three persons have each given a different "positive" location to an Alumnus, and all entirely different from his own account of himself. These and other difficulties have been met all along. They are merely mentioned in excuse for delay and some omissions, and a few errors that may be found. The Index and P. O. Directory at the end of the volume, prepared from comparing about eight thousand reports, received since July 1st, it is believed will give, with a few exceptions, the present location of all the Alumni of our Institution now living.

By greatly abbreviating and condensing the items, and omitting much unimportant matter sent in, the present Volume gives about three times as many items as the preliminary one issued in 1868, though less than double its size. There is an immense number of dates, requiring over 50,000 figures, and it will be strange indeed if, with all the care and labor bestowed, there be not some errors; but there are very few—not enough to vitiate the general reliability of the Record. It is hoped that the condensed notes accompanying the several names will gratify the Alumni generally, by answering the common queries concerning A, or B, or C, etc.: "Where is he now, and where has he been laboring?" "What has he been doing?" "What of his family?" etc. (The Editor desires to acknowledge the constant encouragement and valuable aid he has received from President CUMMINGS in preparing this work.)

II. Aside from its interest as gratifying curiosity, and from its being a means of making the Alumni better acquainted with each other, and cementing them more strongly as a body, it is hoped that this work will serve a useful purpose in showing the vast amount of work already accomplished by our Alma Mater, although but a little over a third of a century old. For illustration, a single line tells that "B—— was stationed at M——" for two or three years. This means that a man, with the mental and moral power and influence which a thorough college training always gives, has preached a hundred, or a hundred and fifty Sabbaths to a concourse of people; that he has labored among them as many weeks, moulding their opinions, habits of thought and life, and political action. A single well-educated and trained mind is a power in a whole town, or city, or State, and really exerts more influence than a hundred uneducated intellects. The writings and teachings and preachings of the graduates of the Wesleyan University have exerted a wide influence in the largest Protestant church, and indirectly upon the masses, during the trying times that have agitated our country during the present decade. The Alumni outside of the ministry have not been less influential in their several fields of labor. Let one glance over the many thousands of lines in this Volume, and sum up the immense amount of labor performed in the aggregate, and he can but feel that the hand of God directed the founding and carrying on of the Wesleyan University.

III. But while the Alumni may be pleased, the FACULTY, the TRUSTEES, and the DONORS to the Institution must experience the highest satisfaction in looking over what has been accomplished. Have the Trustees found any other like amount of work to produce so great returns? Have the Donors, large and small, found other investments that have paid so large a percentage? Would the Faculty wish any of their labors recalled? Could they have gone into any other field where their planting and sowing and watering and pruning would have yielded a larger harvest? . . . During the progress of this work, the writer's mind has often turned with gratitude toward those whose earnest labors, watchful care, and generous gifts, have built up and supported an Institution which has given so many of us the mental discipline and literary advantages there enjoyed. Another thought has also often come up in the same connection. Suppose we gather from these Records a summary of what has so far been done by the Alumni who have already gone forth from Middletown, and add thereto what may be reasonably expected from them in the future. Suppose we next reckon the entire expense paid by donations—including only the annual interest on endowments and buildings which are to continue perpetually productive. A rough estimate will show that every ten dollars actually contributed and expended has furnished to the country a whole year's labor and influence of an educated mind! Is not such an investment a PAYING ONE?

IV. But the period of infancy and of severe trial has passed by, and though the Institution has already accomplished so much, it is merely upon the threshold of its usefulness. With its army of well-trained Alumni already in the field, one here and another there, each as a teacher and guide of public opinion, and with the annual additions to be made, how much more will be accomplished in the next thirty-six years!

Special to the Alumni.

While the past labor and worry over these records has been severe and often annoying, the work can be carried on in future with comparatively little outlay of time, especially if it have the constant coöperation of the individual Alumni. A large supply of material will be constantly accumulating. An Annual or Biennial Supplement, and a general re-compilation triennially or quadrennially, will perhaps answer every purpose. As soon as the missing records can be filled up, and other matter, sufficient to render it worth while, shall come to hand, a Supplemental Sheet will be issued, perhaps the present season.

☞ The wide margins on the pages are designed for inserting desired memoranda. Every item of interest, every change of pursuit or location, should be reported as it takes place. The Record Book is always open, and new entries have already begun.

☞ It is especially desirable to have every Alumnus send, early in April each year, all matters concerning himself appropriate to this Record, arranging the items in the order followed in this work. Give the P. O. address always. Send also any notes about other Alumni not certain to report for themselves. . . . Three or four errors occurred in first arranging the numbers, but so many notes came in, referring to numbers only, that it became impracticable to change them in this volume. We shall therefore let them stand in the future, as here printed. Please let the number always be used in connection with each name or item.

* * This Record will go on increasing in value and interest from year to year, and from age to age. How intensely interesting would such Records of the first half century of Yale and Harvard now be, could they be obtained!

HISTORICAL.

THE WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY was organized in 1830, chartered in May, 1831, and opened for students in September, 1831. The immediate occasion of the foundation of the University, at that time, was the fact that the Military Academy, presided over by Captain A. Partridge, founded in 1824, at Middletown, was in 1829 removed to Norwich, Vt.; and the buildings which had been occupied by this Institution were now offered by its Trustees to the Methodist Episcopal Church, for the establishment of a COLLEGE. This offer was made on condition that $40,000 should be raised as an endowment for the proposed College. Dr. Laban Clark and Dr. Heman Bangs, then stationed in New-York, were greatly interested in this enterprise, and were mainly instrumental in drawing to it the attention of the Methodist Church. The matter was brought before the New-York and New-England Conferences, and a joint committee was appointed to take it into consideration. Willbur Fisk and Joseph A. Merrill were members of the New-England Committee; and the New-York members were Laban Clark, Heman Bangs, and S. Luckey. There were three other places that contended with Middletown for the honor of possessing the oldest Methodist College: Troy, N. Y.; Wilbraham, Mass., whither the oldest Methodist Academy had just been removed from New-Market, N. H.; and Bridgeport, Ct. But the zeal and efforts of those who favored the present location prevailed in obtaining the required endowment, and thus securing the buildings of the Military School.

It was thought, by some, that no American Methodist was qualified to take charge of such an institution; and it was proposed to call from England Dr. Adam Clarke, the celebrated biblical scholar and commentator. But wiser and more practical views led to the election of Dr. Willbur Fisk, then Principal of the Wilbraham Academy, and he accordingly became the first President of the Wesleyan University.

The first Faculty consisted of President Fisk, Professors Augustus W. Smith and John Mott Smith, and Tutor W. Magoun. The first Class, consisting of six members, three of whom now survive, graduated in 1833. The infancy of the Institution was characterized by severe struggles, through which it was guided chiefly by the tact, wisdom, and patient energy of Dr. Fisk. His eminent fitness for the position was at once revealed by his paternal demeanor toward the students, his executive efficiency in general management, and his skill in gathering funds here and there in those days of poverty and weakness. The University has since received generous donations from the wealthy and benevolent; yet the richest legacy ever bestowed upon it was the pure and lofty character of Wilbur Fisk.

At the death of Dr. Fisk, in 1839, Dr. Stephen Olin was elected to the vacant Presidency. Ill-health, however, prevented his acceptance of the position, and for two years the college had no acting President. The commanding position and wide-spread influence of Dr. Nathan Bangs led to his election to the vacant post, in 1841. Dr. Bangs accepted the position with reluctance, as one for which he had little taste; yet he felt it his duty thus to serve the church, when called to the responsibility by her voice. He willingly, however, resigned the position to the able hands of Dr. Olin at the end of the first year.

Dr. Olin's fame as a pulpit orator, and his previous success in similar situations, caused him to be greeted with an enthusiastic welcome. His health, however, was so broken that he could never give himself to his duties as he desired. His influence was widely felt abroad, from the pulpit and the platform, where he was so mighty in raising up friends and collecting funds for the College; and his grand, commanding character, in its own original fashion, moulded the minds of the young men; yet he was ever regretting his physical inability to attend to the detail duties of the College. He had, however, a faithful co-laborer in Dr. A. W. Smith, who, acting as Vice-President, greatly relieved him in the internal working of the Institution.

After the death of Dr. Olin, there occurred a vacancy of a year, and then Dr. Augustus W. Smith, who had watched over the Institution from its very cradle, and who, at his post as Professor of Mathematics, had won high and deserved success, was elected to the Presidency. The great event of his administration was the raising of the "centum millia" endowment fund. Although, as is usual in such cases, the whole amount of this fund was never realized, yet by the persevering labors of President Smith, ably aided by Professor H. B. Lane, more than $80,000 was at this time invested for the endowment of professorships. Isaac Rich, of Boston, the fame of whose benevolence now fills the church, was the chief donor to this fund, making at this time the first of his princely donations to the University.

President Smith resigned in 1857; and at this time, on nomination of Ex-President Bangs, who, until his death, continued a steadfast friend to the University, Dr. J. CUMMINGS, President of Genesee College, was elected to the vacant post, and has filled it to this time with a distinguished ability that needs no mention here. The endowments have been greatly increased, new buildings erected, and the grounds improved. A good GYMNASIUM has been built; a permanent library fund of $27,600 has been raised by the Alumni; and a fine LIBRARY BUILDING, capable of containing one hundred thousand volumes, built of Portland stone, has been erected by ISAAC RICH, at an expense of $40,000.

During the Centenary year, $38,800 were subscribed to build a "MEMORIAL CHAPEL" in memory of the students who fell in the WAR FOR THE UNION. About $36,000 of this subscription has been expended. The stone-work on this edifice has now been finished, and building operations are suspended for lack of funds. At the commencement of 1868, an addition of $125,000 was made to the Endowment fund by the generosity of DANIEL DREW and ISAAC RICH, making this fund now amount to about $320,000. During the past year, the "Old Boarding Hall" has been transformed into "OBSERVATORY HALL," by a handsome addition in front; and in its tower is mounted one of ALVAN CLARK's finest REFRACTING TELESCOPES—an instrument equaled in power by only two others in America.

The FACULTY of the University now consists of a President and seven Professors, one of whom, the venerable Dr. Johnston, labored with the founder of the Institution. The Real Estate and Endowments are now worth about $560,000.

 1838-41. Planting cotton, Wilkinson Co., Miss.
 Died, Oct. 5, 1866, in St. Louis, Mo., while on a tour for his health ; son and daughter with him.

A friend writes : "Valedictorian of his class. Went to Mississippi after he left W. U., and settled on a plantation near Pinckneyville. He subsequently married and leased a small plantation. His literary tastes and religious nature found little encouragement in his surroundings, and he never appeared in public except in some defense of public school systems or of some moral reform. These things did not make him personally popular, and he gradually confined himself exclusively to his business, and all the grand aspirations that were raised by his scholastic course, as a student, were destroyed. Throughout the war of the Rebellion, his property was invaded alternately by both parties. At the close of the war, he sickened and died, it was believed by those who knew him, a broken-hearted man."

Married, Jan. 4, 1838, to Sarah H. McGehee ; deceased 1855. And in 1859, to Louisa Landon ; dec'd, 1863.

 A devoted and successful Teacher. Intended studying some years in Germany, but responded to the call of his country in 1861. Was Captain in the 81st regiment volunteers; led his men fearlessly in the battles of Fair Oaks and Seven Pines, and through the dreary seven days' fight and retreat. One account says: "Mortally wounded at Harrison's Landing about Aug. 1, 1862." Another lengthy account, on file, does not mention the wounding, but says: "He returned to his tent as usual, Aug. 8; at midnight he awoke suffering; remedies relieved him, and he slept until morning; at seven o'clock he fell asleep, and died in a few hours." A fellow-officer wrote to his friends, near the close of the war: "Evening of Aug. 8th, Capt. Hannals came to my tent and said: 'Lieut. N. I have often been told that a Christian can not serve God in the camp, or in the service; but this I know is not true—for never in my life was my confidence in God stronger than it is to-night.' Before eleven o'clock next morning, this Christian soldier exchanged his armor for a heavenly crown."

 1854-7. "Studied Law, with but little intermission, at Middletown; during this time, I twice tried my fortune abroad. In the Northfield Seminary, in N. H., I failed of success as an instructor in all departments of academic knowledge, having attempted too much. I taught the High School at Deep River, in Saybrook, one term, in the winter of 1856-7. While at Middletown studying Law, I taught at the Preparatory School of Daniel H. Chase.

1857, April 14. Admitted to the Bar at Haddam; was in the office of my brother, S. Parker Holway, at Middletown, till July, 1857, when I removed to Sandwich, Mass., having been admitted to the Massachusetts Bar, before Judge Merrick of the Supreme Court. I left Sandwich in May, 1858, and sojourned at Middletown and Barnstable, Mass., till Oct., 1858, when I sought Harwich, Mass., for business, till I could reach some more promising place.

1859. Such a place I found in Dec., at Wareham, Mass. The only 'honors' I have received have been Justice of Peace for Barnstable county, and for Plymouth county; Notary Public at Wareham, seven years; and Chairman of School Committee of Wareham, three years."

SUMMARY.

FOR the reasons referred to in the Introduction, it has, so far, been impossible to gather complete records of the doings of all of the 910 Graduates, and the following figures give only a fractional part of the actual labors of the entire Alumni. Among the 867 whose pursuits are reported, there are 404 Ministers, 167 Teachers, 145 Lawyers, 50 Physicians, and 101 engaged in Business.

We have reports of over four thousand years (4166) spent in the Ministry—an average of about 12 years each, even including the youngest graduates. We also learn of an aggregate of over twelve hundred (1217) years of teaching, by 156 of those ranked as Ministers. From 131 of those ranked as Teachers, we have reports of nearly twelve hundred (1186) years of service, giving a total of 2403 years of teaching, so far as recorded; and a total preaching and teaching of six thousand five hundred and sixty-nine years. Thirty six (or one graduate in every twenty-five) have filled the influential position of PRESIDENTS of COLLEGES, and eighty-two have occupied Professors' chairs; while a very large percentage of the Teachers have been Principals of Academies and Seminaries. Six are reported as Professors in Theological schools. Thus the seed sown at Middletown has been multiplied and scattered very widely, and the fruit produced has been almost incalculable in amount and value to the country.

Our Alumni have apparently been too earnest at work to give much attention to politics, and we find only two reported as members of Congress, though a considerable number have filled responsible stations under our Government. One (No. 308) is now in the U. S. Senate.

Of the domestic relations, we have not full reports, but we know of 535 who have been MARRIED; and the names of 1284 Children are given, of whom quite a number have already followed the example of their fathers, and their names are duly enrolled in this Record of Alumni.

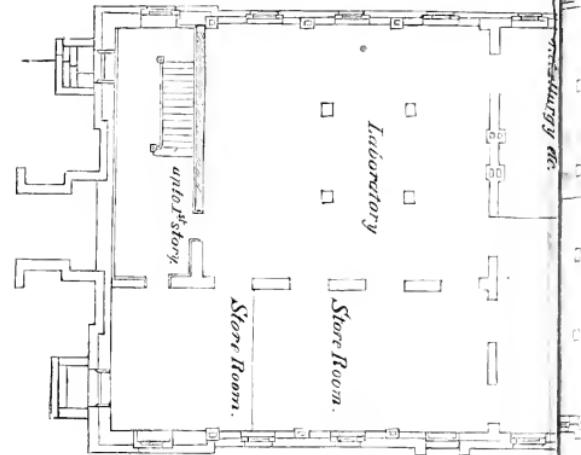

FIG. 2—Basement—CHEMISTRY, ETC.

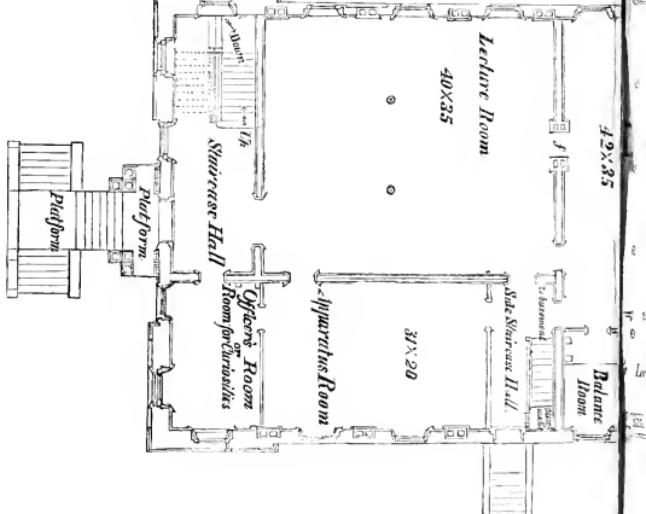

FIG. 3—First Story—CHEMISTRY, GENERAL AND ANALYTICAL.

Notes.—The Wesleyan University, at Middletown, ct., is located on the high hill in the western part of the city, and overlooks the city itself, the Connecticut River, the extensive Portland Quarries, and much of the surrounding country. The University grounds are ample, south, facing easterly, having a broad campus in front descending to High street, with the President's house at the northeast corner. Beginning at the north, we have the old College Building or Dormitories, next south, the old Chapel and Library—now used for Recitation Rooms; next, the new and beautiful "Moxonial Chapel," then the fine "Ricci Hall," or Library Building, and next the new "Oxley or Gym Hall or Natural Sciences," with its south front on Cross street, and the Observatory in the rear. The entire range extends over one-eighth of a mile, presenting a frontage of educational buildings seldom surpassed or equaled. In the rear of the other buildings are the Gymnasium, Old Laboratory, Workshop, Fuel range of buildings, etc. The new structure not only adds greatly to the apparent extent and completeness of the University group of Buildings, but supplies a want long felt. It is 62 feet front and 94 feet deep, and is practically five stories high, as the basement is mostly above the surface. It is essentially fire-proof; the walls and Portico are of "Portland Sand-Stone" (the "Brown-Stone" so extensively used for fronts in New York City) the cornices, dormer window frames, etc., are of iron; the roof of slate, and an iron and brick floor, supported on brick entrance for Students, and front entrance hall for visitors. The floor rises from the Lecturer's table, behind which are furnace, sand bath, etc., connecting through the brick wall at $\frac{1}{2}$ to the Analytical room. The latter occupies the western part of the building, having rooms for Balances, reagents, and a small private or Professors' laboratory, not all indicated on the plan. The apparatus room for general elements, and another private room, are adjacent to the Lecture Room, and Entrance Hall. The Second Story (fig. 4), high, 12 feet in the clear, is devoted to Natural Philosophy, Natural History—Geology, Botany, etc.—with rooms A, B, C, D, for apparatus, specimens, preparation of specimens for the Cabinets, etc., etc. A Dumb-writer, etc., passes up through the building for conveying apparatus and specimens. This, like the head of the stairs at the 2d story floor, is enclosed in fire-proof trap-doors, when not in use. The Third Story, (fig. 5) and Fourth Story, (fig. 6), together constitute the grand Cabinet, or Museum of Natural History. They are occupied with alcoves, glass cases, and specimen cases on tables. A broad opening in the floor throws the two rooms together and furnishes in the centre of fig. 5, a place for large or high specimens of animal remains, plants, and the like. The cases and tables above are shorter, leaving a walk and railing around the area. The Fourth Story is essentially a Gallery to the Third Story, reached by sets of spiral stairs not indicated in the engravings. Abundant provision is made throughout the entire building for fuses for furnaces and ventilators. Large ventilating flues are constructed with thick iron smoke chimes running through the centre, so that a strong upward draft of air is produced outside of these iron flues. Where great heat is to be used for smelting or other purposes, the furnaces flues are built of fire-brick. The general credit of the Architecture of the building is due to Messrs. Bryant & Rogers, architects, (Boston and Hartford), who drew the original designs, and modified them to meet the wishes of the donor of the building. The plan and arrangements are the results of visits by Drs. Cummings, Johnson, and Prof. Rice to Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Brown, Amherst, etc., and the information there kindly given; and of consultations at Mr. Judd's office, participated in by Mr. Rogers, Dr. Cummings, Mr. C. North, Mr. Judd's business partners, Messrs. Chase & Burrough, his Associate Editors, and suggestions both at these meetings, and at a subsequent one at Columbia College, New-York, whose counsel of the Wesleyan University, were of material use, and highly valued. The general direction and oversight of the work, both in general and detail, has fallen upon President Cummins, who has been indefatigable in his efforts, night and day, to carry out the wishes of the donor, to secure the best and most economical construction. The entire expense is assumed by Mr. Judd. The original design was for a building to cost about \$70,000; but this did not suit his own views and wishes, and he has, without solicitation or suggestion from others continued to add largely to the proposed expense. The extra cost is not yet known. But, doubtless, taking into account, that every thing has been done for credit, with peculiar advantages in the season, and in procuring materials, etc., the building will be quite as valuable as one costing \$1,000,000 or more, under ordinary circumstances. Special favors have been extended in the furnishing of materials, etc., by the American Corrugated Iron Company, Springfield, Mass., the Shaler & Hall Quarry Company, Messrs. Peter Cooper, Hewitt & Co., New York; Silas T. Vanderbilt, Esq., glass-maker, Flushing, N. Y.; Messrs. Prentiss, Jones & Ward, glass importers, New York, etc.

and iron pillars and walls, completely shuts off all fire communication between the Chemical Department in the first story and basement, and the Natural History and Cabinet Rooms above. The window sashes are the only woodwork exposed to fire from without, and the building is 70 feet high in the clear, is entirely above ground, with a paved area and coping outside the walls, which will give the fire department ample space for operations.
